WASHINGTON STATE LAW...

requires that alcohol consumption is limited to those of legal drinking age (21 or older). Additionally, it prohibits alcohol service to those who appear intoxicated. While the party must go on, our service must comply with all Washington State laws related to the service of alcohol.

Employees of City Catering Company will card guests who appear to be younger than legal drinking age. We generally err on the side of caution -- meaning we card those who look younger than 30 years old. Carding guests is not limited to the point of service. We will refuse to serve those who appear intoxicated. If needed, we will take any actions necessary to stop any alcohol violations including suspending service until the problem is corrected. If problems continue, we may cease service for the remainder of the event.
